The Kiwanis Music Festival – National Capital Region

An Ottawa Jewel since 1945!

Highlights Concert 2019

Excellence. Talent. Passion. This is what the Kiwanis Music Festival is all about. With so many alumni success stories and the enormous talent of its annual competitors, the Kiwanis Music Festival has established itself as a well-respected competitive music festival within the National Capital Region and has become the second largest competitive music festival in the province of Ontario!

Since 1945 the Festival has welcomed hundreds of thousands of brilliant performers from various disciplines. Participating musicians and performers are graded and awarded prizes and scholarships in recognition of their hard work. They are judged by a team of adjudicators comprised of internationally renowned artists and teachers of the highest professional standing. The Festival welcomes them each spring to share their knowledge, experience and passion with these young performers.

Last year the Festival welcomed over 3,000 entries competing in over 175 classes and were awarded over $50,000 in scholarships. An audience of over 4,000 spectators enjoyed the performances at venues throughout the City of Ottawa from Kanata to Orleans. The festival concluded with a fantastic evening of performances during the Highlights Concert Gala Event. The show was presented to a full house at the Algonquin Commons Theatre.

Each year, young artists from Ontario, Quebec and all over Canada participate in the Festival. Winners from each discipline move into provincial and national competitions. The exceptional experience provided by the Kiwanis Music Festival helps these competitors develop as artists and before you know it, they become the stars of tomorrow! Already on their way to stardom, are talented performers such as: Anita Pari – 18 year-old composer, cellist and pianist; Nadia Petrella – rising opera star; and Miss Leah Cogan – CBC Triple Sensation Winner, just to name a few!

The Kiwanis Music Festival is:

An association of dedicated artists and volunteers who collaborate each year to make young musicians' dreams come true!

Highlights Concert 2013

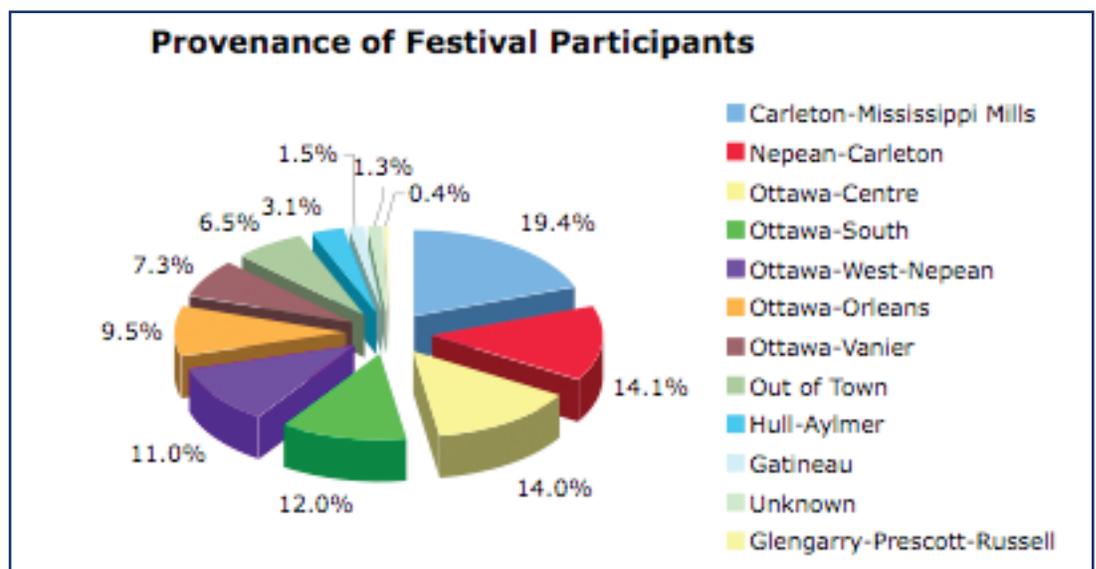

The Festival's mandate is to encourage and promote the enjoyment and study of music. The achievement of excellence is recognized through the production of its annual competitive Music Festival.

The festival also offers amazing and talented young musicians the opportunity to perform in concert, nurture their talent and help them build their future as professional artists!

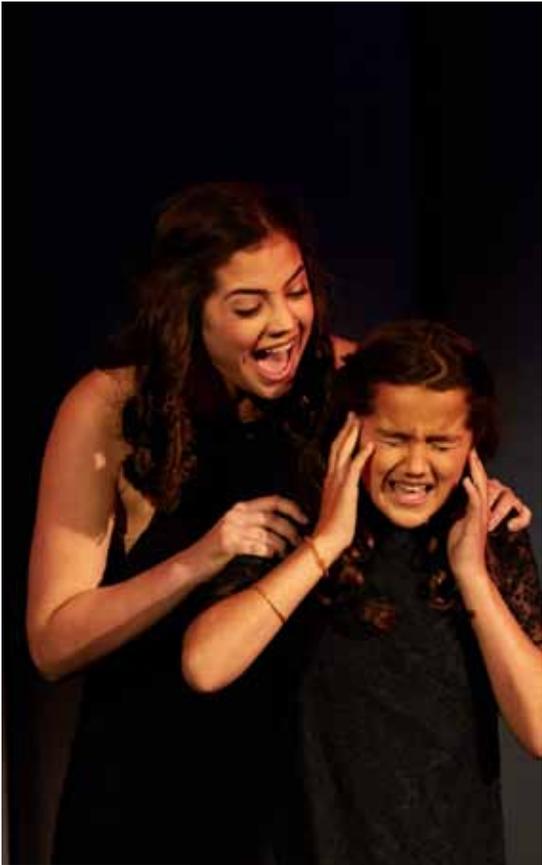

Values: excellence, commitment, self-discipline, and passion.

Since its inception in 1945, the Festival has continued to grow. Although originally known as the Ottawa Music Festival, its name was changed in 1985 to reflect and recognize the involvement of the Kiwanis Clubs of the National Capital Region who assumed shared responsibility for the Festival along with non-Kiwanian volunteers. The name of the organization was changed to the Kiwanis Music Festival.

In order to commemorate our longevity, in 2012 the Festival's legal name was changed to The National Capital Region Music Festival (1945) although we continue to operate as the Kiwanis Music Festival - NCR.

Keep an eye out for these Rising Stars

Steffi DiDomenicantonio, nicknamed Steffi D, is a singer from Orleans, Ontario, and the fifth-place finalist in the 2006 season of Canadian Idol. A former student at Ecole secondaire publique De La Salle, she has been a stage performer at several Ottawa-area theatrical venues since the age of four. On Canadian Idol, she was known for the trademark bow in her hair and for having a flair for the music of the 1920s. Steffi D left the Kiwanis Music Festival just a few years ago, after performing in the Festival since the age of 8. She was recently selected to play the role Ilse in the first national tour of the smash Broadway musical Spring Awakening. The edgy production focuses on a group of sexually oppressed teenagers in 19th-century Germany. Steffi D plays Ilse, whom she describes as “an old soul in a young girl’s body.” “When I am on stage, and I quote from one of Anton Chekhov’s great plays: ‘I take pleasure in my performance. I delight in it. I am in a state of intoxication when I’m up there.’ I wouldn’t exchange that feeling for anything else in the world.”

At 15 Anita Pari graduated from high school and began making big plans for her future in music. It’s a dream more than 10-years in the making. “I started playing piano when I was three-years-old in a program called Music For Young Children,” says Pari. “My older sister, Cristella, was six and we were both pretty interested in music so my parents thought it was time for her to start taking music lessons and, although I was a bit young for the program, they decided to take me along.” By the age of seven, Anita started playing a second instrument, the cello, spending endless hours perfecting her craft. “For piano, I do about five hours per day of practising and cello, about two hours,” she says. “I do as much as I have to for what I want to accomplish in a day.”

Anita now attends the University of Miami, under full scholarship, where she will earn a bachelor’s degree in music under the guidance of professor Santiago Rodriguez, who saw Anita’s potential when she studied under him at a Pennsylvania summer school.

Suren Barry Born into a very arts-oriented family, Suren has been playing the piano since he was five years old. His older brother was taking lessons and Suren became fascinated and wanted to play as well. Unlike many young children who take lessons and need constant reminding and pushing to practice, he says that he loved it. He loved every part of playing the piano, even the endless repetition of scales, the theory, the whole package. Suren's first full recital took place when he was 15 years old. He has been participating in the Kiwanis Music Festival and other competitions through his musical life, consistently winning awards.

After completing his Baccalaureate at Lycée Claudelle, Suren attended the Glen Gould School of Music on a full scholarship. He transferred to Carleton University's music program in his third year and graduated this past spring. He will take the next year "off", although he plans to enter some competitions and work toward taking his Masters of Music degree in Europe. He acknowledges that he wants to increase his capacity to play improvisationally and is envious of those who have a natural talent for playing on the fly. Having completed his undergraduate degree, Suren is now attending the Eastman School of Music in Rochester for his Master's degree (beginning Fall 2013).

Nationals Music Festivals Competition

Christian Paquette You wouldn't know it today but Christian's sole reason for choosing the flute was because it was portable. Logically, the flute fit in his backpack with all his other school books and paraphernalia – and a flautist was born. Christian is also an accomplished vocalist and conductor, having performed and conducted in the University of Ottawa's yearly operatic offering.

In the fall of 2013, Christian was very excited to move to Boston to do a 2-year Graduate Diploma at the New England Conservatory with Ms. Paula Robison, a world class soloist!

Flautist Christian Paquette is one of Ottawa's rising musical stars. A "Renaissance" musician of many talents including baritone soloist, conductor and instrumentalist, he excels in all mediums and inspires both audience and fellow musicians to great heights. It has been a great pleasure for me to work with him during his short stay at the U of O.
